

Author Guidelines

Submission Requirements

Before you compose your contribution, we kindly ask you to contact us in order to receive a template. If it is not possible for you to use this template for any reason, please keep the formatting as plain as possible. Please then submit your paper in Microsoft Word document file format to EJIMEL via email to ejimel@rwi.uzh.ch.

Where there is more than one author clearly indicate who will handle correspondence at all stages in the refereeing and publication process, also post-publication. Make sure that telephone number (with country and area code) as well as email-address and postal address are provided.

There is no limit to the length of the contribution. However, the information provided should be concise and to the point. As a multilingual journal we put the emphasis on a clear and plain language in order for the contributions to be also accessible to foreign-language readers. The necessary translations and language revision are the responsibility of the author. Please make sure that grammar, punctuation and spelling are correct in the language used. Transliteration of Arabic words and phrases should be consistent throughout the manuscript and should adhere to common scholarly standards. Please note that accepted contributions will not be copy edited until the formal requirements are complied with. Contributions that do not follow this guideline may be returned for revision.

I. Manuscript Structure

The title should appear on the first page of the manuscript followed by the first name(s) and last name(s) of the author(s). After an asterisk footnote, add the academic title(s), and short information about the author(s) professional qualifications.

E.g.: * Alexander Miller studied Law at the University of Zurich and London. He currently is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Cambridge.

The contribution should start with a concise (no more than 200 words) and factual abstract, followed by the main text. The abstract should not contain reference citations.

II. Stylistic Requirements

1. Document Headings

There are three levels of titles, which should be short and concise. All major words (i.e. nouns, verbs, adjectives and adverbs) should begin with capital letters. Example: Country X's People Vote for New President.

Please apply the headings as follows:

- I. First level title
- 1. Second level title
- a) Third level title

Use this numbering also for internal cross-referencing.
Please do not use more than three levels of headings.

2. Main Text

Please choose the “Standard” formatting for the continuous text. As a general rule, we ask you to use as little formatting as possible.

Do not use bullets or numbering or other automatic functions to list items. Use non-automatic hyphens or Arabic numerals instead.

Fonts: Palatino 11 (Abstract: Palatino 10), line spacing 1 ½

For emphasis, use italics rather than underline or capital letters. The same applies to foreign language expressions (please do not use quotation marks).

Abbreviations are to be avoided and should, if used, explained at first application. As a general rule, be sparing with abbreviations; only abbreviations firmly established in the field may be eligible. Ensure consistency of abbreviations throughout your contribution.

Quotations should be marked with quotation marks (e.g. “rule”). A quotation within another quotation shall be marked by singly quotation marks (e.g. “rule ‘quote’ rule”)

Omission of a word or words is indicated by three periods between square brackets, e.g. [...].

Numbers up to and including 10 should be spelt out in full. However, for consistency’s sake, if numbers up to ten and numbers above ten are included within the same sentence, all should be written out. Use the form day-month-year, e.g. 15 June 2010 or equivalent, if in another language.

Use italics to mark titles of books or journals in the text. Articles/stories and the like in quotation marks, e.g., The publication of Comparative Law was [...]; Miller’s “Comments on Legal Developments in Algeria” were published in [...]

Web references: should only be provided when the source is unavailable in a traditional printed format. As a minimum, the full URL should be given. Any further reference, if known (e.g., DOI, author names, dates) should also be given. The URL should point readers directly to the source rather than to an intervening page of links. Please add the date of the last visit: <http://www.specimen.com> (last accessed [date], Stand [Datum]).

III. Bibliographical references

EJIMEL uses consecutively numbered footnotes, not endnotes. The footnotes refer either to a word or a sentence (or part of a sentence). They should be placed after punctuation marks, except when referring to single words. They always end in a full stop. Generally, each footnote should include a cited page number.

As there is no bibliography at the end of an article, all bibliographical information should be given in these footnotes. The first time you cite a source, give the full citation. The provided information should be as complete as possible and enable a reasonable reader to identify and locate the cited authority in a publication of general circulation. Give place and years of publication. The latter is required for all sources.

Subtitles should be preceded by a colon, e.g. Family Law: The Lawyer’s Experience.

State last and first names of authors in full (no initials). Use small caps (NOT capitals) e.g. AL-MANSOURI SAEED MOHAMMED or LOCKE JOHN.

Two authors: List the authors names in the order in which they appear on the title page (last and first names of the authors), separated by a slash (X/Y) e.g. WALTZ SUSAN/BENSTEAD LINDSAY.

Three authors: List all the authors' names separated by a slash (X/Y/Z).

Where there are more than three authors, only the first author should be named, followed by et al.

In the English language, give the page number with preceding "at" and without "p.", e.g. MALLAT CHIBLI, Introduction to Middle Eastern Law, Oxford 2009, at x.

In the German language, omit "S." for page reference: MALLAT CHIBLI, Introduction to Middle Eastern Law, Oxford 2009, x.

After the first full citation, cross-citation should be used by indicating the footnote in which the full citation can be found: E.g. MALLAT, supra n. 3, at 5. In German, cite as follows: MALLAT, supra Fn. 3, 5.

Please do not use op. cit., loc. cit. or ibid or equivalent in other languages.

References to journal articles should include the name of the author, title of the contribution and journal as well as the volume number and year of publication.

For example, SCHOENBLUM JEFFREY, The Role of Legal Doctrine in the Decline of the Islamic Waqf: A Comparison with the Trust, Vanderbilt Journal of Transnational Law, Vol. 32 (1999), at 1191-1227.

Apart from the previous rules, the journal does not require a particular style of referencing. However, a chosen style must be maintained consistently throughout the contribution. References should be clear and easily understandable for foreign language readers too. Otherwise we refer authors to the commonly used guidelines concerning citation, namely The Bluebook: A Uniform System of Citation, 20th ed., Cambridge MA 2015, or similar works in other language jurisdictions. Please indicate which guideline you have adhered to in the correspondence accompanying your contribution.

IV. Appendices

If there is more than one appendix, they should be identified as A, B, etc.

V. Language Editing/Publication

Proofreading is solely the author's responsibility. Authors for whom English is a second language should have their manuscript corrected by a native English speaker prior to submission where necessary.

Prior to publication the author(s) of accepted contributions will have to sign and return to EJIMEL a "Publication and Copyright Agreement", which will be sent to the author designated as managing author as per section I. above.

VI. Ethical and Legal Conditions

Authors are encouraged to carefully study the content of EJIMEL's homepage and pay special attention to the sections "Editorial Policy" and "Open Access Philosophy" on our homepage prior to submission. Please take note of the fact that the EJIMEL is read by an international public.

Every contribution will carry the following statement: "This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial-No Derivative Works 3.0 Unported License (CC BY-NC-ND 3.0, <http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-nd/3.0/>)."

The republishing or translation of a contribution that originally appeared in the EJIMEL must mention its first publication in this journal in the republished text. The citation entails customary bibliographic citation, including author name(s), article title, as well as volume number and year of publication Electronic Journal of Islamic and Middle Eastern Law (EJIMEL), page Nos. and the URL <http://www.ejimel.uzh.ch> e.g. MILLER ELIZABETH, Business Laws of Mauretania, Electronic Journal of Islamic and Middle Eastern Law (EJIMEL), Vol 1. (2013), pp. 100-135, <http://www.ejimel.uzh.ch>.

Furthermore, it is the author's sole responsibility to obtain any permission necessary to publish the contribution in the EJIMEL as well as to clear for reuse any material used from other sources, including but not limited to passages quoted from copyrighted material and pictures/illustrations. Digital picture files must be supplied to EJIMEL in highest possible resolution (min. 300 dpi).

EJIMEL cannot cover any costs/expenses that arise in connection with the writing or translation of a contribution.

Do not hesitate to contact us if you have any further questions.
